What is an 'ablation'
Ablation (sounds like ah-blai-shun) is a medical procedure used to correct certain heart rhythm problems, such as atrial flutter. It restores the normal regular rhythm of the heart by scarring the tissue in the heart that triggers the abnormal rhythm. This Atrial flutter ablation is performed in the hospital. You'll receive a medication called a sedative that helps you relax. Once the sedative takes effect, a small area near a vein in your groin or neck is numbed and catheters are inserted into the vein. Your doctor carefully guides the catheters through the vein and into your heart.

Atrial flutter ablation
Atrial flutter arises from the right atrium. In 90% of the cases, it is an anti-clockwise circuit, and in 10% of the cases, a clockwise circuit in the right atrium. A single ablation line is created between the inferior vena cava and the tricuspid valve (cavo-tricuspid isthmus ablation) to interrupt the flutter circuit.
