I chose Damon from Teresa Gabelman's The Protectors series because it ticks off a lot of my boxes: an alpha vampire in protector mode and a heroine who's a social worker whose goal in life is to take care of the kids placed in her care. Plus it's been hanging out on my Kindle App since 2014. Goodness, that's a long time.

Damon (The Protectors, #1) by Teresa Gabelman I'm all about Amazon freebies and that's why I gave this one a shot. I normally don't set my expectations too high for novellas, but there are some that can surprise me on occasion with a very balanced and engaging story that makes the most of its page time.

Nicole wants Damon but refuses to make herself available to him only to be hurt again. The story is well developed and interesting. I would have like a little more background information about the vampires and the vampire council before they decided to make their presence known to the world. But I like the protectors and their sense of humor.
